

NAZIS BACK 'MEDDLING' CHARGE

TRADE TREATY FOES LINE UP NEW BATTLE

'Not Licked Yet,' Colorado
Senator Says After Vote
Defeats Amendment.

RATIFICATION LOSES 41-44

Donahey Backs Administration Fight; Berkley Predicts Victory at Finish.

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON — Republicans and western Democrats, defeated by three votes in an attempt to require Senate ratification of reciprocal trade agreements, concentrated today on lining up support of News Gathering, the subject pact to approval by both houses of Congress.

"We are not licked yet," said
Sen. Edwin C. Johnson, D., Col., after the senate rejected, 41 to 44, the ratification plan of Sen.
Key Pittman, D., Nev.

But Sen. Pat Harrison, D., Miss., floor manager for the program, contended that "the fight is over." He predicted that the house-approved resolution to extend the plan for three years would be passed either Tuesday or Wednesday without amendment.

The Pittman bloc claimed strong support for an amendment by Sen.
Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D., Wyo., to require both chambers to pass on future trade agreements by majority vote. Under the ratification proposal, the agreements would have been defined as treaties requiring approval by a two-thirds vote of the senate.

Two Democrats—Sens. Vic
Donahey, of Ohio, and Harry H.
Schwartz, of Wyoming—were the key figures in yesterday's narrow decision. The position of both was in doubt until almost the last moment, but they finally aligned themselves with the administration. Had both voted for the amendment, it would have been adopted, 45 to 42.

Schwartz said he would support the O'Mahoney amendment, and Sen. David I. Walsh, D., Mass., who opposed Pittman's plan, also was expected to support O'Mahoney's proposal.

Democratic leader Alben W.
Barkley predicted defeat for O'Mahoney's amendment, as well as for a proposal by Sen. Alva B. Adams, D., Col., to subject the trade pact to approval by a majority vote of the senate.

NEW THREAT

California Warned Again of High Water Dangers.

(By United Press)
SAN FRANCISCO—A new flood threatened rainsoaked northern California today.

A month ago the Sacramento river tore through its levees and flooded more than 100,000 acres of rich farmland. Thousands were forced from their homes; damage was estimated at more than $15-000,000. Today, after a week of intermittent rain and a prediction of 24 hours more, the same people faced a second tragedy.

"We expect dangerous high stages, with critical conditions developing," U. S. Meteorologist E. H. Fletcher warned at Sacramento. "Waters are rising rapidly in the upper branches of the Sacramento, Yuba, Feather and American rivers."

The Feather, Yuba, and American rivers flow into the Sacramento above the city of Sacramento.

Earl Griffith, Secretary of State, Dies

1940 Census to Cut Size of Congress, Cost Jobs of 6 to 10 Representatives

South and Far West to Gain, Midwest and Northeast Lose.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles on what the current "battle of the census" is all about, written by an Associated Press expert.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

WASHINGTON — Political heads will roll in the 1940 battle of the census.

How many heads is problematical.

It depends on:
How fast southern mothers produced children during the last 10 years.

How many Joad families swapped misery in Oklahoma for misery in California.

How many southern lads and lassies chose the old homestead for their port in the storm of the depression, instead of the big cities in the north.

Moreover, congressmen must decide what to do about the decennial man-under-the-bed—RE-APPORTIONMENT!

If you take (1) the latest mathematical doodles of the Census Bureau, put 'em on a slide rule, and (2) assume the automatic reapportionment law of 1929 will survive the battle of the census, then you find at the end of your trail a glibet for six congressmen.

At least six legislators from the northeastern and midwestern states will lose their $10-000-a-year jobs. And six congressmen from the South and Far West will grow where no congressmen have sprouted since 1910.

That means a gain of at least 12 votes in the House of Representatives for the South and Far West by 1942. They'll pick up six actual votes, and benefit also by the death of six northern votes.

You can find plenty of statisticians who figure the northeastern states may lose more seats than that. Some say 10 or even 12 seats, instead of six. But the mathematical wizards who figured out reapportionment for me took the conservative side of the street.

COUNTY SEEKS STATE'S OKAY ON T. B. HOME

Prepares to Lease Sanitarium
For Richland Patients If Institution's Approved.

Only the state health department's approval of the Eleanor Thomas sanitarium on Lexington avenue was needed today to turn the institution into a rest home for county tuberculosis patients.

At the request of a committee of Mansfield physicians, Dr. W.
J. Smith of the state health department came here yesterday to inspect the sanitarium and it was expected that a report on his visit will be submitted in a week or 10 days.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of county commissioners, said virtually all the arrangements for obtaining the sanitarium under a rental agreement had been completed. If the state approves it, a contract with T. Amos Jones, the owner and operator of the sanitarium, will be drawn up, it was said.

The institution, which will provide space for about 30 patients, would be made available under a monthly or yearly basis, with Jones retaining title to it and providing for the care of the patients.

Check Facilities.

Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, Dr. Lincoln Fisher, county T. B. physician, and Dr. John S. Hattery, chairman of the county T. B. advisory committee, visited the sanitarium yesterday with Dr. Smith. They comprise a committee appointed recently by the county commissioners to investigate the facilities of the institution.

County commissioners proposed to buy the sanitarium last December, but decided it would be too large an obligation in the first year of the county's new T. B. program. At that time the price was set at $35,000.

The program is financed by a half-mill tax levy collected for the first time this year.

MORE RAIN DUE

So Delayed Easter Parade
May Be Delayed Again.

If yesterday's balmy weather gave you an idea, ladies, that tomorrow you might get out that Easter finery you had no chance to wear last Sunday—don't set too much store by it.

For the weatherman says tomorrow will be rainy—just as today was rainy. And rain would be just as damaging as last week's cold was uncomfortable.

Yesterday was one of those "ideal" spring days. The mercury got way up to a balmy 69, and the low last night was 39. At 9 a. m. the mercury stood at 43, and at noon it was 45.

DIES IN FIGHT

Ohioan Succumbs 5 Minutes After Beer Parlor Brawl.

CALDWELL —(AP)—Cecil Hutchins, 42, was struck on the jaw and killed early today during what Sheriff Rose Clucus described as a beer hall fight.

The sheriff said Hutchins died five minutes after Harry Simmons, 22, hit him with his fist. Simmons was held on an open charge.

house. He was taken immediately to White Cross hospital, where he died.

The heart ailment was aggravated by a congestion of the lungs. He had suffered from asthma for years and recently had influenza.

He was believed to have been recovering and plans were being made to take him home from the hospital Monday.

November election, when both the unexpired term and the regular two-year term will be filled by

DECLARE NEW 'WHITE BOOK' TO BE ISSUED

Berlin Says More Charges to Be Published If American Attitude's Unchanged.

CALLED 'PROPAGANDA'

Washington's Ridicule of War Mongering Charges
Arouses Nazi Anger.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN — A new German white book—even more sena-tional in its international repercussions than the first—has been prepared for use in shattering any campaign to discredit the Polish documents published yesterday which accused the Roosevelt administration of war mongering.

Disclosure of the existence of another collection of German evidence allegedly against the Washington government and the Allies was made today in a statement that the issuance of such a document depends entirely upon the attitude of the Roosevelt regime.

If Washington outdoes itself in disavowing or ridiculing the veracity of the white book then the more striking evidence might be forthcoming, it was said.

From the tone used by reliable sources, it could be assumed the new paper would contain a more direct report on alleged conversations of American officials.

(In Washington, President Roosevelt branded the German white book sheer propaganda. A formal denial was issued by Secretary of State Hull. William C.
Bullitt, American ambassador to France, and County Jerzy Potocki, Polish ambassador, also issued heated denials of the German charges.)

'No Quarrel Intended.' Officially, the German attitude seeks to stress the fact that German-American relations do not enter into the white book accusations; that no quarrel is intended.
"The main purpose of these documents," it was stated, "is to give the world an opportunity to establish war guilt, to let it discover for itself who were the war mongers behind the scenes in Europe, and what purposes they had in mind."

German quarters are eagerly

Hear Cannonading In Area of German North Sea Border

TOENDER, Denmark — (AP)—
Telephoned messages from Saed on the Danish-German North Sea border said today that steady cannonading was heard, beginning about 11 a. m., from the southwest, in the general direction of Sylt and Hogeland, German air and naval bases.

Saed residents said the gunfire was continuous and that it increased in intensity from noon to about one p. m. The gunfire they said, sounded more like heavy guns on men o'war than anti-aircraft batteries.

Sylt frequently has been the object to British Royal Air Force attacks and residents of the German border areas now claim to be able to distinguish between anti-aircraft and naval gunfire.

GRILL SUSPECT IN MURDER OF PENNSY CO-ED

Contractor Questioned All Night But Fails to Give Clue In Slaying.

(By Associated Press)
STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—Grill-ing of an unmarried heating contractor through the long hours of the wet and dreary night apparently failed to yield a single clue toward solving the fiendish murder of 17-year-old Rachel Taylor, Pennsylvania State College freshman.

State motor police, who closed doors of their Rockview prison barracks to all visitors during the more than five hours they grilled the suspect, firmly declined to disclose any details of their inquiry but Sheriff Edward Miller reported no tangible evidence obtained.

The man was spirited from Philadelphia where he had been taken yesterday on the tip of an alert porter who noted stains on his clothing and heard him say he had just arrived from State College where he had roomed for several years.

Quizzing of the suspect marked the principal police move since the chubby Miss Taylor's badly mui-lated body was found early Thursday in the driveway of a school three miles outside town. She had arrived at 1:30 a. m., by bus from her Wildwood, N. J., home. Two other co-eds were the last to see her alive as she walked alone toward her dormitory.

A coat hooded over the 35-year-old suspect's head shielded his identity as he was whisked from state police barracks after questioning to the county jail where he spent the remainder of the night.

The contractor's landlady said she talked with him at her home until 12:30 a. m. Thursday "and as far as I know he was in the house after that."

Medical examiners said the short, blond Miss Taylor probably was not criminally attacked but was mutilated by a sex maniac.
There were teeth marks on her chest. The body was sent home yesterday for burial.

MINISTER DIES

Sir John Gilmour, Head of British Shipping, Stricken at 64.

LONDON —(AP)—Sir John Gil-mour, 64, minister of shipping, died at his home this morning, his ministry announced.

Sir John had held the post since Oct. 14 of last year when the ministry of shipping was created. The ministry was designed to co-ordinate activities of the merchant fleet in the economic war against Germany. A nucleus for it had existed within the board of trade.

were dead today from burns received when their four-room cottage was destroyed by fire Friday.

Mrs. Teresa Leedy, 36, whose husband and four of her five children lost their lives, died in a Portsmouth hospital during the night. She was fatally burned while rescuing one child and trying to save the others.

10 QUARANTINED IN JAIL AS FEVER CASE IS FOUND

Health Commissioner Orders Isolation of Prisoners to Guard Against Spread.

Ten prisoners in city jail were quarantined today by Dr. Roy C.
Rehder, city-county health commissioner following the discovery yesterday of a case of scarlet fever among the prisoners in the jail.

He said the action was only a precautionary measure to protect against spread of the disease and would remain in effect only until health authorities were assured that none of the prisoners had contracted the disease.

The patient is Paul Hoffman, Baltimore, Md., who was jailed last Friday on a charge of panhandling. Police Chief Meade K.
Bates said.

Removed From Jail

He said the man had been removed to a North Main street rooming house under the direction of the health department and placed under quarantine there.

Bates said the prisoners under quarantine in the jail included only transients in the "bull pen," all serving out intoxication fines, and that no one would be lodged with them but would be put in other cells.

When the quarantine is lifted and the prisoners released, Bates said the cell where the men are quarantined will be fumigated as an added protection against the disease.

TROUBLES DOG OHIO WOMAN

Mother Dead In Crawford County.
Accident Puts Her In Hospital.

BUCKEYUS —(AP)—Troubles seem to follow her. Mrs. Inez Williams, Cleveland, declared from her hospital bed in Norwalk today.

Informed of the death of her mother, Mrs. Louella Kuendli, of nearby Nevada, Mrs. Williams left Cleveland by automobile.
Near Norwalk, the automobile in which she was riding skidded and overturned in a ditch. Neither Mrs. Williams nor the driver was hurt.

However, when Mrs. Williams started up the road for help, a large truck skidded into her, breaking both her legs.

Sunday Features Bloom Like Spring Flowers In Tomorrow's News-Journal

THE FLOWERS that bloom in the spring have nothing on the features you'll find blooming in the Sunday Edition of the News-Journal tomorrow.

Example:

When Teachers Got $8 a Month.

From the oldest available record of the Mansfield board of education, a minutes book covering the years between 1846 and 1853, comes the story of how early teachers were hired and some of the peculiar bills the board considered. The record was recently discovered by Miss Nettie Herring, 132 South Main street, whose great-grandfather was president of the board. It tells about the first school building in district 3 where the new John Simpson Junior high was opened recently.

Kill the Umpire.

Yep! Mansfield has a 93-year-old baseball fan who knows the names of all the major league players. A lady fan, at that. She follows all the games avidly and this is her story.

It's The Tops.

The highest cascade ever built by man, using 3 tons of water per minute in 15 water falls and operating under colored light, will be one of the new Westinghouse attractions at the New York

World's Fair this summer. An illustrated story gives you a preview of this cascade and other features of the exhibit including Elketo, the mechanical man, and the new "microbizzkrieg."

They Fight Forest Fires.

A picture story of nearly a dozen Mansfield lads who are quartered in an Idaho CCC camp brings you details of their camp life and their adventures in battling forest fires.

Telegram On Horseback.

From the day when Midway is the nearest telegraph office in this vicinity and even from the days of Benjamin Franklin come many of the tales of a Greenwich antique collector whose story appears tomorrow.

Eclipsing the Sun.

In addition to a special feature with illustrative diagrams on the April eclipse of the sun, you will find comprehensive stories on Westinghouse and the Mansfield Metal Vault company in the series "What Mansfield Makes."

The Dionne quintuplets are back again, as good Samaritans this time; the women's page carries an advance note on summer hair styles; politics, society, comics, fiction and nationally-read columns fill out a partial roster of the Sunday features.

And, as always, the latest news.

DEATH MYSTERY

Girl, 18, Brought To Doctor's Office After Drinking Party.

DETROIT — (AP)—The body of an 18-year-old girl, dead of unknown causes, was brought into a doctor's office early today by three youths and a girl who said they had been at an all-night drinking party aboard the U. S.
naval training ship Dubuque.

The girl, identified as Charlotte Cranson, of Detroit, was brought to the office of Dr. Coletta Swaney. Her neck bore superficial scratches but there were no other signs of injury, police said.

TILLIE THE TOILER

LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY

HONEST, ZERO... I GUESS I'M THE LUCKIEST KID IN THE WHOLE WORLD... LAST WEEK I HAD LOTS A FUN VISITIN' AT MRS. BLACK'S HOUSE... AN' NOW I'M BACK WHERE I KIN GO TO SCHOOL AGAIN... THAT'S LOTS A FUN, TOO

'COURSE, I'LL BE BEHIND THE REST OF THE CLASS WITH MY LESSONS... BUT I'LL STUDY AN' STUDY SO HARD... I'LL BETCHA I'LL SOON CATCH UP WITH 'EM

I DIDN'T WANNA MISS SCHOOL... BUT THE TEACHER WAS SWELL... WHEN MR. HAPPY ASKED HER WAS IT ALL RIGHT TO GO... SHE SAID 'YES'... IT WAS MY DUTY TO VISIT MRS. SPRUCE AN' MRS. BLACK

YOU KNOW, I THOUGHT ONLY COPS AN' SOLDIERS AN' PEOPLE WHO WORE UNIFORMS HAD TO DO THEIR DUTY... BUT TEACHER SEZ EVERYONE HAS DUTIES THEY MUST DO... EVEN LITTLE KIDS THAT AIN'T GROWN UP YET!

I'VE BEEN FIGGERIN' OUT WHAT YOU SAID 'BOUT ME SENDIN' LITTLE ANNIE AWAY TO SOME HIGH-TONED GALS' SCHOOL... IT RILES ME TO ADMIT IT... BUT I FIGGER YOU'RE PLUMB CORRECT.

YOU KNOW I NEVER WAS MUCH OF A HAND FOR STICKIN' MY NOSE IN A FRIEND'S PERSONAL BUSINESS... BUT I THINK A HEAP OF THAT YOUNGSTER, MY OWNSELF.

'COURSE, YOU DO! HOW COULD ANY HUMAN CRITTER HELP A-LIKIN' HER? I NEVER HANKERED FOR ANY HIGH SOCIETY... BUT I WANNA DO WHAT THE YOUNGSTER'S FOLKS WOULD DO... IF SHE HAD FOLKS

HONEST, ZERO... NO FOOLIN'... THE TEACHER SAID I WAS MAKIN' SLENDIP PROGRESS IN SCHOOL... THAT MEANS I'M DOIN' OKAY... AIN'T IT GRAND?

GOOD MORNING, CHILDREN! GOOD MORNING, MRS. HARVEY.

AN' EVERYONE IN HALLELUYA IS AWFUL NICE AN' FRIENDLY... BUT NOBODY EVER TALKS 'BOUT THE WEATHER.

HONEST, EMMA... I DON'T KNOW WHY THEY DO... BUT MOST PLACES THEY TALK 'BOUT THE WEATHER ALL THE TIME... THEY SAY... 'LOOKS LIKE RAIN'... 'KINDA COOLSH TODAY'... 'LOOKS LIKE AN EARLY SPRING'... OH, ALL SORTS OF THINGS

I GUESS IT'S 'CAUSE THE WEATHER IS ALWAYS DIFFERENT EVERY DAY... OUT HERE IT'S ALWAYS THE SAME... EVERY DAY IT'S NICE AN' HOT... SO THERE AIN'T NO USE TALKIN' 'BOUT IT

LOOK WHAT'S COMIN'... MAYBE IT'S A CIRCUS... NO, IT COULDN'T BE A CIRCUS... A CIRCUS PARADE ALWAYS HAS LOUD MUSIC

GLORY OSKY... I KNOW WHAT IT IS... PIPES FOR THE NEW ARTESIAN WELL THAT MR. HAPPY IS FIXIN' FOR THAT POOR FAMILY!

GOODNESS GRACIOUS... THAT'S AN AWFUL LOT OF PIPE FOR JUST ONE WELL

YOU KNOW THE WATER IS WAY, WAY DOWN UNDER THE DESERT SAND... BUT IF YOU GOT A PIPE LONG ENOUGH... YOU'LL FIND WATER... AN' WHEN IT'S SPOUTIN' UP OUTTA THE PIPE... IT CHANGES THE DESERT INTO A SWELL GARDEN

EVER SINCE THAT DAY WE MET YOU... AN' YOU BROUGHT MR. HAPPY TO SEE US WE AIN'T GOT NO TROUBLE AT ALL

I GUESS THAT'S WHY FOLKS CALL HIM 'HAPPY'... 'CAUSE THE ONLY TIME HE AIN'T HAPPY IS WHEN HE SEES SOMEONE IN TROUBLE... THEN HE STARTS TO FEEL BAD ALLOVER

MY MA DON'T CRY NO MORE... AN' PA IS WHISTLING ALL THE TIME... AN' WE HAVE MEAT EVERY DAY

MY PA SEZ... WITH MR. HAPPY'S GRUB-STAKE AN' A LITTLE HARD WORK... 'TWO'N'T BE LONG BEFORE WE'LL BE BETTER OFF THAN WE WAS BEFORE THE DUST STORM BLEW OUR FARM AWAY!!

THAT POOR FAMILY DIDN'T HAVE NO MONEY... OR NOTHIN' TO EAT... UNTIL YOU HELPED 'EM... NOW THEY'RE LAUGHIN' ALL THE TIME... THE MAN SAID IF IT WASN'T FOR YOUR CHARITY... THEY

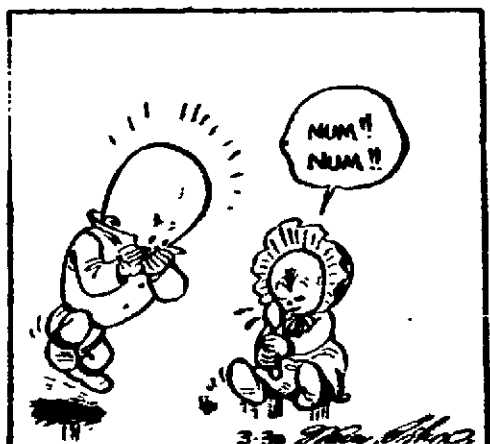

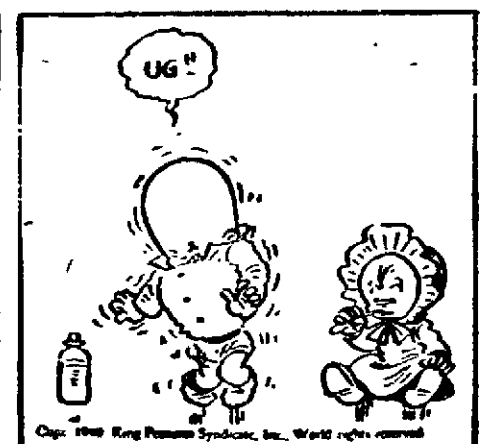

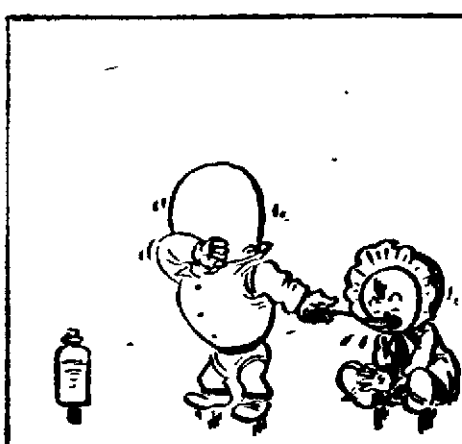

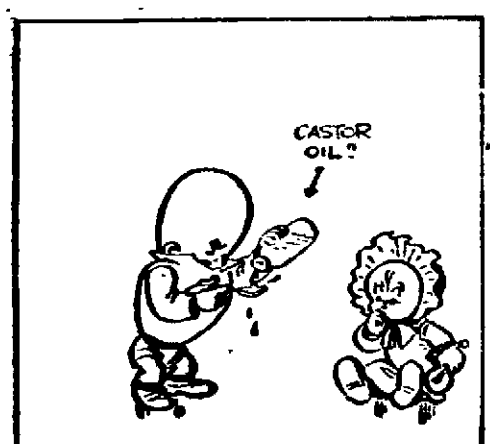

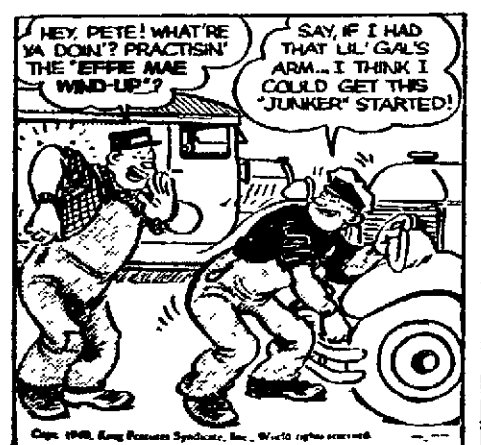

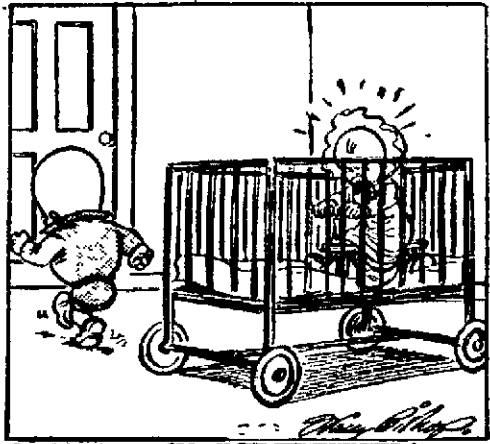

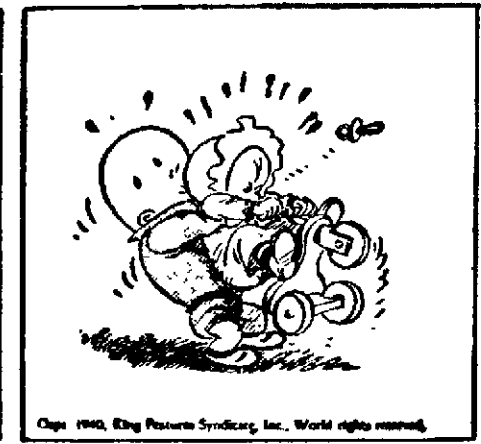

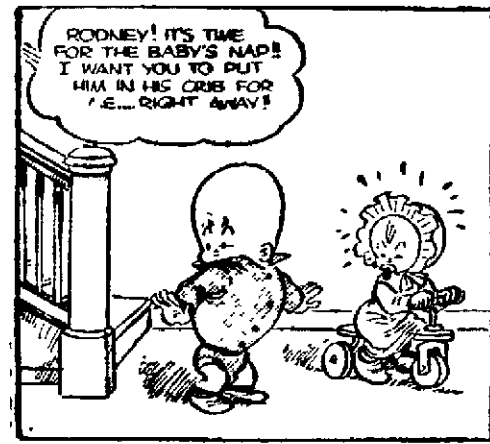

BAH! WHAT'S HE MEAN, YAPPIN' 'BOUT CHARITY? I'M A BUSINESSMAN... I MAKE PLENTY OF MONEY JUST GRUBSTAKIN' FOLKS... IT'S BETTER BUSINESS THAN BANKIN'

I FIGGER MONEYS JUST LIKE WATER... IF YOU DON'T KEEP IT MOVIN'... IT GETS COVERED WITH SCUM... AN' EVEN A POLE CAT WONT TOUCH IT

'COURSE, SOME OF MY INVESTMENTS DON'T PAN OUT... BUT EVERY BUSINESS-MAN HAS TO STAND SOME LOSSES... BESIDES, I'VE SEEN LOTS A HAPPY HOGGERS AN' HAPPY BEGGARS... BUT IN ALL MY LIFE I NEVER SAW A HAPPY MISER!

102 Face Indictments After Plumbing Industry Probe

JURORS SCORE HIGH PRICES FOR SUPPLIES

Claim Distribution System Costs Consumers 20 to 25 Per Cent More.

CLEVELAND—Charging conspiracy to restrain trade, the justice department reached into the plumbing industry in its drive against anti-trust law violation, placing 102 manufacturers, jobbers and unions under indictment today.

The indictment, returned by the federal grand jury here, was the most inclusive to date in the anti-trust division's campaign to end allegedly monopolistic practices in the building industries.

Elimination of "unnecessary and costly steps in the distribution of plumbing supplies" could reduce the cost of consumers "from 20 to 25 per cent," the jurors asserted.

Named as defendants were 12 manufacturers, including the "Big Three" of the industry—Crane Co., Kohler Co., and American Radiator & Standard Sanitary corporation.

In a statement issued at Kohler, Wis., the Kohler company denied participation in a conspiracy.

Walter J. Kohler, chairman of the Kohler Co., and former governor of Wisconsin, was among 53 individuals indicted.

In event of conviction, defendants are subject to fine of $5,000 each, a year's imprisonment or both.

John S. Coe of Waterbury, Conn., manager of the plumbing and heating division of the Chase Copper & Brass Co., who was indicted with the concern, said he knew nothing of the action.

Charles B. Nolte of Chicago, president of Crane Co., and Henry M. Reed, of Ben Avon, Pa., president and chairman of American Radiator also were named. Neither could be reached for comment.

Also indicted were the National Association of Plumbers in the United States, embracing 7,000 employers of journeymen plumbers and the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Steam Fitters, affiliate of the American Federation of Labor with 800 local unions throughout the country.

The grand jury said the indictment charged conspiracy "to establish an uneconomical marketing system for the sale and distribution of all plumbing supplies by 'fixing artificial and non-competitive terms and conditions.'"

Under these terms, "supplies move only from manufacturers to jobbers, from jobbers to master plumbers, and from master plumbers to consumers, each of these groups extracting a profit regardless of whether any necessary services are performed," the jury asserted.

The Ohio Brass company of Mansfield was named as a co-conspirator in the Cleveland jury's report.

Today is the last day on which motorists may purchase the new 1940 license before the Sunday midnight deadline on the old ones goes into effect.

State highway patrolmen have been notified by the state bureau of motor vehicles that there will be no extension of time on the old licenses, and that after midnight Sunday the old ones are illegal, and the drivers are subject to arrest.

Yesterday the office of Deputy Registrar Frank Beaversstock sold 816 passenger car licenses, bringing the total up to this morning to 7,938. Today's sale will not bring the total any where near the estimated 10,000, which Beaversstock had believed would be sold before April 1, he said today.

The auto club office will remain open today until 8 p. m. but will not be open tomorrow. Cy Wallace, state registrar, has asked deputies throughout the state not to sell plates tomorrow.

Up and Down THE STREET

Inclement weather has greeted Boy Scouts of the Johnny Appleseed camp during their spring camping periods for the past ten years, and this year was no exception. They experienced bad weather on both the opening and closing days. When the boys went to camp Monday morning they were greeted with near zero weather, and camp closed today in a steady downpour of rain.

How many Mansfielders remember that there was once an auto works in the city? When Westinghouse officials were digging up material for an industrial story this week, some one remembered that just before Westinghouse purchased the old Baxter Stove company plant on East Fifth street back in 1918, the building had been occupied by the Halladay Automobile company for a year. The parts were not made here but the cars were assembled here and distributed from Mansfield. Halladay was also the name of the car.

Reports that a man was handing out samples of a "new kind of cigarette" to Belleville high school pupils stirred school officials yesterday and put sheriff's deputies on the case. A suspect was questioned by Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman, but he was released when he offered a satisfactory alibi and officers were unable to find any of the cigarettes. Wary pupils said they refused to take any of the cigarette samples which they said were offered to them on a street in the village.

The spring vacation in the public schools this week gave H. J. Dotson, principal of John Simpson Junior high, an opportunity to become acquainted with the new public address system. It is difficult to practice tone and volume control when school is in session, and so the principal was at the building several days this week trying out the system and testing for the amount of volume needed in the gymnasium, auditorium and the school rooms.

PAY $268,000 IN 40 MINE DEATHS

State 'Catastrophe Funds' Tapped to Settle Claims From Ohio Tragedy.

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS, O.—Tapping its $3,342,000 "catastrophe fund," the Ohio Industrial commission today reported allocation of $268,000 in settlement of the first 40 deaths from the Willow Grove Coal mine explosion which killed 72 men two weeks ago.

Commission Chairman Will T. Blake said remaining claims probably would be approved within a week or 10 days through an emergency office in St. Clairsville.

"Many of the victims had large families, and we shall do every thing in our power to expedite handling of the claims," Blake asserted.

The commission to date has approved only maximum awards of $6,500 plus $200 for funeral expenses. On this basis, the disaster would draw $482,400 from the fund.

Payments are based upon wages earned by the victim, with maximum awards for salaries in excess of $28.12 a week. Here, survivors bi-weekly benefits of $37.50 until the principal is consumed.

The Willow Grove blast caused the first major "catastrophe fund" drain since 1930, when more than $700,000 was paid out in death and accident claims resulting from the Millfield mine disaster of the Sunday Creek Coal company.

The fund, established by statute, is financed by two per cent of the commission's general premium income, and is reserved for individual accidents resulting in deaths and accident claims exceeding $15,000.

15 IN CONTEST

Prizes Awarded Winners In Kite Flying Event.

Fifteen hand-made kites were entered in a kite flying contest held yesterday afternoon at Liberty park and sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. working shop. About 75 children witnessed the event.

Prizes were awarded to two boys for their entries. A summer membership to the Y. M. C. A. was given Peter Kaiser, 11 Leverman road, whose kite was flown the longest distance, and a model airplane kite was presented to Tony Weisscarver, 287 Fourth Avenue, whose box kite was judged the best built kite entered in the contest. Kolmer Berry, WPA supervisor at the "Y," was in charge of the event.

Proclamation

WHEREAS the benefits of good music are a part of the cultural and educational life of our city; and whereas the Civic Music association is doing much to develop such interests by bringing to Mansfield the finest musical talent.

Therefore, I, W. J. Locke, mayor of the city of Mansfield, do hereby proclaim the week of April 1 to 6 as Civic Music Week, and call upon all citizens to take due notice thereof.

Given under my hand this 30th day of March, 1940, in the city of Mansfield.

MAYOR ISSUES PROCLAMATION TO LAUNCH CIVIC MUSIC WEEK

On the eve of the opening of the fourth annual membership campaign of the Mansfield Civic Music Association, Mayor W. J. Locke has issued a proclamation in which he points to the contribution good music makes to the educational and cultural developments of a city, and urges support of the campaign.

The proclamation sets aside next week as Civic Music week in Mansfield, which will be observed by the annual membership campaign, the Gladys Swartout concert on Monday night and the campaign workers dinner on Tuesday night.

The campaign opens Monday morning, with headquarters in the office of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, Park Avenue west and Mulberry street, and runs through next Saturday. After the campaign closes no further memberships will be accepted and no single admissions are sold to any concert. This is a regulation of Civic Music organizations over the country.

About two hundred workers have enlisted for service in the campaign, with Mrs. Paul Cropper, general chairman, as the leader. Mrs. W. M. Layton is business manager.

The association hopes to top its membership figures for this past year which was 1,050. Dr. A. O. Fonksrud, president of the association, said today.

More than 150 workers are expected to attend the dinner Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. at the John Simpson Junior high school cafeteria. Mrs. Mercedes Walker, representative of the Artists' Bureau of NBC, New York City, will be one of the speakers. Mrs. Walker has assisted in the membership campaigns for the past two years. Mrs. W. E. Wygant is chairman of the dinner.

Receipts Up

Personal Tax Payments Soar as Deadline Nears.

Late payments today boosted county personal tax receipts to $44,085 with about 1,700 property owners still due to file returns for the first half of the year.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, with whom returns are filed, said the situation "looks much brighter now" after a slow start. Personal taxes will be received until Monday night without penalty.

Real estate tax collections yesterday totaled $17,856, pushing the total real estate collections for the first half of the year to $418,524. Treasurer John E. Kolb said.

Real estate payments can be made without penalty until April 10.

JURY CONVICTS HER OF KILLING TIRE SALESMAN

Victim Killed While Pleading For Mercy Testimony at Murder Trial Shows.

(By United Press)

LAKE CHARLES, La.—The "tiger girl" must hang and she doesn't care.

With utter indifference Toni Henry, 26, thin-faced, small-eyed, listened late last night to the jury verdict which condemned her to the gallows.

She murdered J. P. Calloway, a tire salesman of Houston, Tex. He picked up two hitch-hikers—Mrs. Henry and Harold F. Burks, 23, near Orange, Tex., on Feb. 14. Soon a gun was pressed into his back and Burks took the wheel. In a field near here he was forced to take off his clothes, then while he groveled on his knees praying for mercy Mrs. Henry shot him through the heart.

The jury took six hours to decide her guilt. It found her guilty of first degree murder "as charged," which made the death penalty mandatory. The sentence will be imposed later. Louisiana, as a state, has hanged but one woman.

Mrs. Henry acknowledged having fired the shot in statements to police. But she told the jury that Burks fired it, without her consent. Her attitude was tough and hard throughout.

Burks is waiting trial. Mrs. Henry, whose husband is serving time in Texas for robbery, picked him up in Brownsville. Their idea was to rob a bank after taking Calloway's car.

After killing Calloway and hiding the body under a straw stack, they set out in his car for Stuttgart, Ark., where Mrs. Henry had a bank in mind. But they quarreled and Mrs. Henry stopped the car, slugged him with the butt of her revolver, kicked him out in the ditch and went on. She was arrested at Shreveport and he was captured later at Warren, Ark.

URGE REMOVAL

Workers Alliance Asks Ouster Of WPA Supervisor.

The Richland County Workers Alliance today had asked the state WPA headquarters at Columbus to remove E. M. Conway as WPA supervisor in Richland county on the ground that he discriminated against Alliance members and certain project workers.

The Alliance also asked for an investigation of county projects, contending, among other things, that workers had been forced to stay on projects in the rain, endangering their health.

"WPA workers have rights granted them by congress and we will not stand by and see these rights violated by any supervisor or foreman on WPA," John Sparks, president of the county Alliance, said today.

Sparks said Montgomery Campbell of the labor relations department of the state WPA, promised the county Alliance a reply on their removal and investigation requests by Monday.

T. D. GLASCO DIES AT MILLERSBURG

Justice of Peace, Former Auditor, Succumbs at 68.

MILLERSBURG—Thomas D. Glasco, 68, justice of peace here, and prominent civic and political leader, died at his home at 10:30 a. m. today after a lingering illness.

Born Jan. 29, 1872 in Wyandott county, Mr. Glasco was serving his second term as justice of peace at the time of his death. He was county auditor from 1919 to 1925, has served as assistant auditor, was a member of the school board, former secretary of the Washington township insurance company, a member of the Methodist church and K. of P. lodge.

Surviving are his wife, Minnie, his mother, Mrs. Florence Williams of Nashville, five daughters and four sons. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the home and at 3 p. m. at the Nashville Methodist church.

SLIGHTLY HURT

Two Injured In Collision At Intersection Friday.

Two persons were injured, neither seriously, last night when the machine in which they were riding collided with another car at East First street and South Franklin Avenue.

Police said they were Mrs. Mary Fortwell, and her son, Robert, both of whom sustained lacerations and bruises, when a machine driven by C. Fortwell, Galion, in which they were passengers, collided with a car operated by Frank Hoffer, 596 South Diamond street.

Not That It Matters

Everyone But the Lucky Customers Ought to Like Adverse Bank Night. Edict

—By JANE WILLIAMS

IF THE state supreme court rules against bank night in the theaters, the sighs of relief that go up in Mansfield from city officials will sound like the rush of wind through Grand Canyon.

Because bank night has become a problem child to officials, as well as a distinct and localized pain to police officers who have to report for duty on their day off, in order to keep the crowds in hand on the outside of the theaters. And if the truth were known probably theater managers would sigh with relief too. In order to avoid conflict with the lottery laws the theater is required to announce names of winners outside the theater and allow three minutes for them to get up to the stage, but by doing this, the crowds save buying tickets and stay outside. With the result that many times when the outer lobby sidewalks are jammed outside the theater, there are vast empty spaces on the inside. Even the customers who would ordinarily attend the shows stay away because of the Friday night crowds.

For the first time the bank night case is before the supreme court of the state, the case having originated in Troy where the trial court ruled against it. The court of appeals upheld the decision and it is now up to the higher court to settle the question in so far as Ohio is concerned.

AND speaking of styles, as we were a paragraph back, don't be surprised to find that the bird on Nellie's hat has found a nest in her hair. Helena Rubenstein, who is to beauty science what Edison and Westinghouse were to electrical science, recently floored blasé New Yorkers with her hair style show, in which glamorous debbies looked like birds.

One of the lovelies had her hair dressed like a bluebird's topknot, with bright blue feathers laced through the dark blond locks. Orchid rouge, lipstick and nail-groom on champagne-rose powder accentuated the bluebird effect. And another was coiffed in the manner of a canary, with canary feathers forming a cute little tail down her neck and canary shades of eye make-up. And there was a Red Robin, a regal peacock and a white Bird of Paradise. Sound gorgeous?

THE birds are held in place by wires and barrettes. Our idea of really being all dressed up is being wired for canary feathers.

REMEMBERING Virginia City. Nev., the ghost town near Reno, we wondered how it would react to the world premiere of a motion picture, to the deluge of beauty and fashion from the fabulous city of Hollywood. But just as we guessed, it didn't react.

The town of 1,500 inhabitants (mostly unmarried miners), 14 saloons and a night club, about $10,000 a day for the entire town, paid little attention to the Hollywood parade, and didn't even ask for autographs. Sounds like a gun-toting town, but it is tamer than an Ohio cross-road. Even Reno didn't let the descent of the stars interfere with the business of granting divorces, and when Leo Carrillo rode his horse right into the bar, no one looked up from the slot machines, even though they'd never had a horse in there before.

Back in the days of the Constock lode—somewhere in the early 70's—there were 80,000 people in the rip-roaring town of Virginia City. How the old town then would have welcomed an event like the "Virginia City" premiere! But it came years too late.

Which is painfully typical of life sometimes; the flash and the glitter come to late. And when they do, they get only a ghost-town welcome.

OF COURSE it's none of our business, but we can't help that let-down, disappointed feeling over the Norma Shearer-George Raft romance, which friends predict will end in marriage so soon as Raft gets a divorce.

It's like hearing Marion Anderson sing, "Oh, Johnny" or Paderewski playing "Flat Foot Floogie." The dignity and the beauty of this actress—at least on the screen—seems to go illy with the deadpan Raft whose screen diction always savored a little of the vinegary work over the viaduct.

And we felt distinctly pleased as we looked at other silly hats and felt we were in the swim.

Back in the days of the Constock lode—somewhere in the early 70's—there were 80,000 people in the rip-roaring town of Virginia City. How the old town then would have welcomed an event like the "Virginia City" premiere! But it came years too late.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's gotta be big. It's gotta be as big as "Gone With the Wind." It's gotta be as big as last week's super-colossal or it's no soap. You see a new preview and the boys around town, asking about it, say, "How is it? Is it big?" After a while you get better. Is size in a picture the cardinal virtue? Does a movie have to be big?

It's in the books that it doesn't. It's in the Hardy family books. They started out modestly, meaning the studio didn't tear up four acres to build sets and stages for them. They didn't blare the trumpets and toot the horns about it. They just made 'em, and kept on making 'em. Not big, not little, just good.

Their box-office popularity hasn't gone to their heads. When a Hardy picture starts, the cast usually around the director (it's usually George B. Seitz), they just go to work. They all attend to business, and after a number of days another Hardy picture is finished. Nobody gets important about it. Nobody tries to ring in the biggest earthquake, biggest fire, biggest windstorm in movie history. And the Hardys go right along.

It's in the books on "A Man to Remember," too. There was no colossal, no super-anything. Just a simple story, and believable characters, and a grand little picture came out of it. It's there for "Five Came Back," a good thriller, not "big"—but interesting.

I've nothing against the big ones, either, if they're interesting. But think back to "Marie Antoinette," the colossal that almost spelled the end of the big ones. Fascinating in its lavishness, it still challenged endurance. Think back to "Suez," a biggie which had everything, including Tyrone Power—everything except interest and entertainment. Think back to but why recall the tedious hours you too have spent?

Think now, if you will, about that cast that mostly wasn't big at all "The Grapes of Wrath,"—before "The Grapes of Wrath."

John was expecting it to do him good. It did. The previewers liked his work. It looked as if John Beal, after taking a boating on had movie parts and an unsuccessful play, was "in" again.

But John Beal, good actor that he is, is not big. Tyrone Power is. And things around here have gotta be big. That's the rule—on the lot where they made "The Grapes of Wrath" with a cast that mostly wasn't big at all "The Grapes of Wrath."

TWO INJURED IN COLLISION NEAR MT. GILEAD

Trucker Says He Fell Asleep At Wheel; Dayton Women Receive Injuries.

MT. GILEAD—Two women were injured in a collision between truck and private car on Route 42, north of Mt. Gilead Friday morning.

Cause of the collision was reported by Deputy Sheriff M. C. Griffin to be excessive fatigue on the part of the truck driver, John Arelt, of Cleveland. Arelt told Griffin he fell asleep at the wheel, after 29 hours without rest.

Those injured were Mrs. M. W. Kauffman and Mrs. Ray Valentine, passengers in the private car driven by Ray Valentine, all from Dayton.

80 TAKE CIVIL SERVICE EXAMS

Test Papers to Be Graded In 2 Weeks; Eligible Lists to Be Compiled Then.

Eighty persons last night participated in civil service examinations held at John Simpson junior high school for the purpose of establishing eligible lists for patrolmen, firemen, waterworks pumpmen, draftsmen and rodmen.

Atty. J. V. Will, secretary of the civil service commission, said the board expects to grade the test papers within the next two weeks. Applicants whose grades are 70 or over will be placed on the eligible list from which vacancies in these departments will be filled.

Will said a total of 98 examinations were taken last night, 13 of the applicants taking tests for two of the positions.

Among these were Harry Cooper, former city patrolman who resigned from the police force two years ago. He took examination for both patrolman and firemen positions.

Other former patrolmen who took the test for a place on the police department were Ralph Hildebrand, who resigned three years ago, and Howard Kern, who also left the force about three years ago.

Daniel Snider, former fireman, who lost his position when another member of the department returned to work about three years ago was among those who took the examination for firemen.

GOES TO JURY

Double Murder Trial At West Union Heads For Finale.

WEST UNION — A common pleas court jury today deliberated the fate of Darwin Edgington, 26, charged with first degree murder in the slaying near here Jan. 30 of Mr. and Mrs. Craven Grooms.

Before receiving the case late yesterday, the jury heard Prosecutor J. W. Lang of Adams county, demand that Edgington pay with his life for slaying the couple, whose bodies were found in the charred ruins of their home.

EARL GRIFFITH, SECRETARY OF STATE, STRICKEN

Mt. Gilead Publisher Dies at Age 52 From Heart Attack; Funeral Monday.

Democratic nominees for his own office last Monday. He ruled that petitions of Earl Griffith, candidate for the nomination for secretary of state from North Olmsted, were valid. The validity of the petitions had been challenged by John J. Kennedy, another candidate from Cleveland Heights.

His first official act, on his inauguration day in 1939, was to grant a corporation charter to the Rotary club at Cardington in his home county.

His weekly newspaper, the Morrow County Sentinel, had been in the Griffith family for 89 years. It was founded by his grandfather, the late John W. Griffith, and continued by his father, the late Harry S. Griffith, who once was on the old board of managers of Ohio penitentiary.

Mr. Griffith was the owner and publisher of the Sentinel for the past 15 years.

He was Mt. Gilead postmaster from 1928 to 1934, resigning to be chairman of the Republican state campaign committee. He managed the successful campaign of Clarence J. Brown for the Republican nomination for governor in 1934.

He was a member of the Morrow county Republican committee and of the state committee from the eighth district.

Griffith's first name was Harry but he never used it.

He was a close friend of President Warren G. Harding, who once published The Star in nearby Marion. A picture of Mr. Harding in Mr. Griffith's office was autographed with the words: "In memory of my earliest Republican gospel in the Morrow County Sentinel."

Mr. Griffith was born July 13, 1887 at Centerville, O. While a student at Ohio Wesleyan university, Mr. Griffith was interested in campus politics. He campaigned for Robert H. Haig, now a Columbia university professor, who was elected president of the athletic association over Thad Brown, now a member of the federal communications commission.

Although he did not play football in college because of his parents' objection, Mr. Griffith acted as football scout for Branch Rickey, now vice president and general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team, who was then Ohio Wesleyan coach.

During his junior year in college his grandfather died and he dropped out of school to help his father edit the Sentinel. Three times the newspaper has been judged the outstanding county weekly in Ohio.

Since his election to public office, Mr. Griffith frequently has visited the newspaper plant, rolled up his sleeves, and "made up" the front page.

He had spent most of his life in Mt. Gilead. He once said the only reason that he had not spent his entire life there was that "my mother's parents lived in Centerville and her father was a doctor."

His marriage to Mary Terry, also a native of Mt. Gilead, took place in 1912.

Surviving are his wife, Fern McDowell Redeker. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the R. E. Beck funeral home with Rev. S. A. Metzger, pastor of the English Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery, Galion. The body will remain at the home until Monday noon.

TAKEN TO PEN

BUCYRUS — Floyd Orewiler, Bucyrus, indicted on a non-support charge and Joseph Taylor, Galion, indicted for the theft of an automobile, were taken to Ohio penitentiary Friday to serve indeterminate terms. The men were taken to Columbus by Deputies Ralph Schreck and Elwood Jacobs.

OFF TO CAMP

SHELBY—George Zeiters, Jr., Bruno Caprini and Richard Chew of Troop 1 of the Boy Scouts and Dean Metz, Gerald Spangler, Lawrence Boehlert, Martin Yarnan and William Foraker of Troop 3, left Friday to attend the special training course for den chiefs to be held the week-end at Camp Avery Hand, Jr., southeast of Mansfield. These boys with Charles Hart, who could not make the trip, are den chiefs in two Cub Scout packs organized here last week.

HEIRS NEAR DEATH AFTER AUTO CRASH; WILD PARTY ENDS IN TRAGEDY

Tony Barclay, playboy, who was a member of a hazing party which resulted in the death of a student at Bowamus College two years ago, was again the central figure in a tragedy which this time sent three sorority students of the Fairview School for Girls to the hospital, one near death, the other two suffering from minor injuries.

Police, questioning Barclay, learned that the three injured girls were Elizabeth Jordan, daughter of the steel magnate; Elaine Warburton, fiancée of Eric Reardon of this city; and Clara Blanchard, heiress to department store millions. Suffering from a fractured skull as well as from numerous lacerations in the face which she sustained when the windshield of the car was shattered, Elizabeth Jordan's condition is considered critical. Miss Warburton and Miss Blanchard suffered comparatively minor injuries and will be held at the hospital for observation.

Tony Barclay admitted that the party had gone to the Blue Glass Inn, a local roadhouse, for a celebration, but insisted that only Betty Jordan had taken a drink. Police doubt his story, claiming that the odor of liquor found on all girls, together with the smashed whisky bottle found on the floor of the car, was ample proof that all had been drinking.

"Mother!" Mrs. Reardon raised her head as Eric dashed excitedly into the garden. Behind him came Elaine's aunt and the expression on her face was vivid proof that she had learned of the accident. Mrs. Reardon glanced coldly at them both, placing the newspaper on the table.

EARL GRIFFITH, SECRETARY OF STATE, STRICKEN

Mt. Gilead Publisher Dies at Age 52 From Heart Attack; Funeral Monday.

Democratic nominees for his own office last Monday. He ruled that petitions of Earl Griffith, candidate for the nomination for secretary of state from North Olmsted, were valid. The validity of the petitions had been challenged by John J. Kennedy, another candidate from Cleveland Heights.

His first official act, on his inauguration day in 1939, was to grant a corporation charter to the Rotary club at Cardington in his home county.

His weekly newspaper, the Morrow County Sentinel, had been in the Griffith family for 89 years. It was founded by his grandfather, the late John W. Griffith, and continued by his father, the late Harry S. Griffith, who once was on the old board of managers of Ohio penitentiary.

Mr. Griffith was the owner and publisher of the Sentinel for the past 15 years.

He was Mt. Gilead postmaster from 1928 to 1934, resigning to be chairman of the Republican state campaign committee. He managed the successful campaign of Clarence J. Brown for the Republican nomination for governor in 1934.

He was a member of the Morrow county Republican committee and of the state committee from the eighth district.

Griffith's first name was Harry but he never used it.

He was a close friend of President Warren G. Harding, who once published The Star in nearby Marion. A picture of Mr. Harding in Mr. Griffith's office was autographed with the words: "In memory of my earliest Republican gospel in the Morrow County Sentinel."

Mr. Griffith was born July 13, 1887 at Centerville, O. While a student at Ohio Wesleyan university, Mr. Griffith was interested in campus politics. He campaigned for Robert H. Haig, now a Columbia university professor, who was elected president of the athletic association over Thad Brown, now a member of the federal communications commission.

Although he did not play football in college because of his parents' objection, Mr. Griffith acted as football scout for Branch Rickey, now vice president and general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team, who was then Ohio Wesleyan coach.

During his junior year in college his grandfather died and he dropped out of school to help his father edit the Sentinel. Three times the newspaper has been judged the outstanding county weekly in Ohio.

Since his election to public office, Mr. Griffith frequently has visited the newspaper plant, rolled up his sleeves, and "made up" the front page.

He had spent most of his life in Mt. Gilead. He once said the only reason that he had not spent his entire life there was that "my mother's parents lived in Centerville and her father was a doctor."

His marriage to Mary Terry, also a native of Mt. Gilead, took place in 1912.

Surviving are his wife, Fern McDowell Redeker. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the R. E. Beck funeral home with Rev. S. A. Metzger, pastor of the English Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery, Galion. The body will remain at the home until Monday noon.

TAKEN TO PEN

BUCYRUS — Floyd Orewiler, Bucyrus, indicted on a non-support charge and Joseph Taylor, Galion, indicted for the theft of an automobile, were taken to Ohio penitentiary Friday to serve indeterminate terms. The men were taken to Columbus by Deputies Ralph Schreck and Elwood Jacobs.

OFF TO CAMP

SHELBY—George Zeiters, Jr., Bruno Caprini and Richard Chew of Troop 1 of the Boy Scouts and Dean Metz, Gerald Spangler, Lawrence Boehlert, Martin Yarnan and William Foraker of Troop 3, left Friday to attend the special training course for den chiefs to be held the week-end at Camp Avery Hand, Jr., southeast of Mansfield. These boys with Charles Hart, who could not make the trip, are den chiefs in two Cub Scout packs organized here last week.

DIES AT AGE 78

MILLERSBURG David D. McDowell, 78, of Killbuck, former village officer there, died at his home Friday after a long illness. He was born in Monroe township May 22, 1862 and for 28 years in Killbuck. He served as mayor of Killbuck for six years and as councilman several terms. He farmed for a number of years of his life and retired from that 22 years ago. The wife who was formerly Cambria Gray, survives.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Sunday in the Killbuck Church of Christ.

DIES AT HOME IN CRESTLINE

Charles Redeker, 63, Retired Railroader, Stricken After Brief Illness.

CRESTLINE—Charles Redeker, 63, a retired Pennsylvania railroad conductor died early Friday morning at his home at 211 North Seltzer street after an illness of short duration.

He was born on a farm south-east of Crestline on March 28, 1877 the son of the late Henry and Sophie Koon Redeker.

He was married May 31, 1935 in Galion to Mrs. Fern Heiss McDowell who is his only survivor.

Mr. Redeker has resided in Crestline all his life. He was a member of the F. & A. M., being a 32nd degree Mason. A member of the Eagles lodge and of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

He was retired from active service with the railway company on Feb. 29, 1940.

Friends may call at the family home until Monday noon when the body will be removed to the Robert Beck funeral home for services at 2 p. m.

Rev. S. A. Metzger, pastor of the English Lutheran church will officiate and burial will be made in Fairview cemetery at Galion.

and all of his energy to the office. Ohio has not only lost a fine citizen and public official but I feel very keenly the loss of a long-time personal friend—a friendship which dates back to my earliest associations in political life.

"I shall ever be grateful for one of the campaigns when I was a successful candidate which was managed by Mr. Griffith. His life and his service will be an inspiration to others to give of their time to public life."

Officials in Mr. Griffith's office said the state constitution provides for appointment of a secretary of state by the governor to fill the vacancy until the November election, when both the unexpired and full terms will be filled.

It was understood that nominations for the short term would have to be gained by petitions.

The only other Republican candidate for the regular term nomination is Edward J. Hummel of Cincinnati, who several times has been an unsuccessful candidate for the office. He ran against Mr. Griffith for the nomination two years ago.

The names of other candidates may be "written in" on the primary ballot.

There are seven Democratic candidates for the regular term nomination for secretary of state.

watching American reaction. Afternoon newspapers and the radio are giving great prominence to details of the controversy.

The German radio keynoted Nazi criticism of the Washington reaction with this comment on Secretary of State Hull's reply to the German accusations:

"Thereby, Hull dissociated himself from the reports. In that manner too, he disavows his own ambassadors."

Obviously the Germans are hoping William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to France, will be forced to resign, but there are indications that President Roosevelt and Hull will be shielded as far as possible.

The original documents, which contained 16 alleged confidential dispatches of Polish diplomats in Warsaw by the Germans, were said to have been initiated with marginal notes by former Polish Foreign Minister Josef Beck and other Polish statesmen.

It was pointed out as highly interesting that Count Jerzy Potocki, Polish ambassador to Washington, used nothing but French stationery with the watermark "Mirkow," as if the French foreign office had supplied the Polish government official with stationery.

The Polish ambassadors in London and Paris, used "extra strong" English or French bond, German officials disclosed.

Roosevelt and Hull Challenge Statements.

WASHINGTON — The authenticity of documents produced by German officials as evidence that "American policy" helped loose war on Europe was challenged emphatically in administration quarters today.

Secretary of State Hull spoke bluntly. He declared that the state department placed not "the slightest credence" in the conversations related in the German white book, and denied that the war-like attitude they set forth represented "in any way" the country's foreign policy.

William C. Bullitt, the United States ambassador to France, and Count Jerzy Potocki, Polish ambassador to the United States, two diplomats whose names figured prominently in the Berlin collection—both rejected as untrue the statements imputed to them in the documents.

At his press conference late yesterday Mr. Roosevelt commented that he thought everybody should take with a grain of salt any propaganda that was put out in Europe today. A little later he amended his remark to make it two grains of salt, and a little later he raised the amount to three grains.

Secretary Hull referred not only to the white book's representation of American policy but also the war-encouraging expressions attributed in the documents of Bullitt and Joseph P. Kennedy, the United States ambassador to Great Britain.

CHAPTER III

"Are Eric and Elaine's aunt up yet?" Mrs. Reardon asked.

"They've finished breakfast and are upstairs packing," Helen told her. "Their plane leaves at 12 and they want to be sure they have everything ready." She picked up the tray and turned to go into the house. "Shall I send Mary to you now?"

Mrs. Reardon heaved a strained sigh. "Yes, I suppose you might just as well. Though I really hate to discharge any one when I'm feeling so good."

Helen offered no comment but walked up the flagstone path and into the house, and Mrs. Reardon, watching her go, found herself wondering what she would do if Helen were to suddenly resign. She supposed in a vague way that her life wouldn't be nearly so pleasant. In a quiet, unobtrusive manner Helen Wortschi had relieved her of many of her tasks and was actually performing them more efficiently. She really was a perfect girl, beautiful, she neither drank nor smoked, was well educated, respectful; the type of girl she had wanted Eric to marry. She wondered if she would have raised similar objections if Eric had chosen her instead of Elaine. She decided she wouldn't. There was something about Helen that convinced her she would make an ideal daughter-in-law.

Her manner underwent a sharp change as a black-uniformed girl came quietly into the garden. Squaring her shoulders, lips compressed into a tight line, Mrs. Reardon coolly surveyed the maid as she placed a newspaper on the table before her.

"Mary," she began grimly. "I suppose you know why I sent for you?"

The girl shook her head, fidgeting with the paper.

Mrs. Reardon's eyes became frosty. "I inspected your room yesterday."

A dull red crept into the girl's cheeks and her eyes became worried. "I—I have to take that wine as a tonic, Mrs. Reardon."

"You are acquainted with the rules," Mrs. Reardon told her firmly. "I am very sorry, Mary, but I will have to discharge you."

To her surprise the girl burst into tears. "You—you can't let me go," she sobbed wildly. "I never drank before—and—and the doctor told me I must drink wine."

Mrs. Reardon was unimpressed by the deluge of tears, nor was she deceived for an instant by the hasty lie Mary had uttered. She glanced unsympathetically at the girl.

"When I hired you I made it clear that I would tolerate no drunkards in my house. I impressed upon you then, Mary, that if I learned you drank alcoholic beverages I would discharge you. You may continue with your work until the end of the month, after which time you will leave. That is all." She stood up to indicate that the interview had come to an end.

"But you can't discharge me," Mary exclaimed, rushing over to the woman and seizing her by the arm. "I'm the only one in the family who is working. And if you let me go we'll be starved. Please, Mrs. Reardon, it won't happen again. I swear it won't happen again."

Mrs. Reardon was in no mood to argue with the girl. She firmly pushed the maid's hand away and turned to walk up the path towards the house. "I do not choose to discuss the matter further, Mary."

say don't drink—and expect it to be law. If you weren't so stupid you'd know there wasn't anything wrong with an occasional glass of wine. But no—you say don't drink and make us sneak around like children just because we need our jobs."

Ire rose into Mrs. Reardon's eyes. "I'll discharge every one I find drinking in this house."

"Oh, yeah?" Mary laughed harshly. "Then kick you own son out of the house—he's no lily either. And when Elaine comes to marry him kick her out, too. Or maybe you think liquor only affects the poor?"

"Eric? Elaine?" Mrs. Reardon's face became black with fury. "How dare you utter such lines? How dare you?"

"Lies!" Mary picked up the newspaper and hurled it into the woman's face. "You can read about it there. As for me, I'm going to get out of this house before I forget I'm supposed to be a lady."

Mrs. Reardon glared at the girl as she ran into the house. The despicable hussy! How dare she accuse Eric and Elaine of loose living? How dare she gasped as her eyes fell upon the huge, black headlines:

SEASON OPENS WITH LUNCHEON MEETINGS

Mrs. Wilmot Peirce, Mrs. George Smith Entertain Two Garden Clubs at Their Homes, Programs Presented.

THE INITIAL SESSION of the current season was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Wilmot Peirce, Yale drive, by members of the Town and Country Garden club. Luncheon was served from a long table decorated with spring flowers in pastel shades. Mrs. George Hypes presided. There were 20 in attendance.

During the business session Mrs. Eugene Smart was appointed to the chairmanship of school gardens. Mrs. Robert Stevens, Mrs. P. R. Lee, Mrs. K. L. Woodman and Mrs. E. K. Clark were named to assist with case and clerical work for the Dental Clinic. The new programs were distributed.

The paper of the day on Conservation was given by Mrs. Walter Willis. The next meeting will be held April 12 with Mrs. M. J. Cole, 460 Lexington avenue. Mrs. Stuart Cramer will have the paper on "New Roses" at that time.

Mrs. George Smith opened her home on Park avenue west to members of the Cottage Garden club yesterday with Mrs. C. C. Blair assisting. There were 20 members present. Mrs. Howard Smith and Mrs. E. C. Frampton presided at the table which was centered with a long, low arrangement of mixed flowers.

"Seeds and Sowing" was the title of the paper given by Mrs. F. A. Greenwood and Mrs. A. C. Tuttle, horticulture chairman, talked on "Shrubs." Mrs. Sherman Wentz was named to attend the conservation school at Cleveland April 11.

Members will meet again April 12 with Mrs. Charles F. Sheriff as hostess, and Mrs. Greenwood as associate. Mrs. B. F. Hagelbarger will have the program at that time.

Entertain One Guest At Dessert-Bridge

Mrs. John Fuller was a guest of the Bid-Again club yesterday evening for a dessert-bridge party at the home of Mrs. Norman Cheape, 456 West Dickinson avenue. Pink and green appointments decorated the small tables when the dessert course was served.

Prizes in the games were won by Betty Knolton and Mrs. Edward Mattox. Mrs. Fuller was the recipient of a guest award. Mrs. Robert Bair has invited the club members to her home, 453 West Dickinson, for a meeting on April 10.

Guest Speaker Talks On Garden Designing

L. O. Gutman was the guest speaker at a meeting of the Buckeye Garden club yesterday at the home of Mrs. Deming Lowrey on Edgewood road. "Designing the Small Garden" was the subject of Mr. Gutman's talk. Mrs. Earl Gaar, the club president, was in charge of a brief business session.

Luncheon was served, buffet style, from a table decorated with a bowl of pansies. Mrs. John Bissman and Mrs. Barclay Herring, who were guests for the afternoon, presided at the table. On April 12, the club will have a joint meeting with members of the Johnny Appleseed Garden club at Mrs. Oliver Henkel's home on Andover road.

CHANGE DATE.

The meeting of the Thursday Mothers club, which was scheduled for next Thursday with Mrs. John Pierce, West Third street, has been postponed until May 2.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Opening Session Features Slides Of Beauty Spots

The opening meeting of the season was held yesterday by members of the Mansfield Garden club with Mrs. W. Gerald Moore, Woodland. Mrs. Alfred Colby was associate hostess. Mrs. Paul Board had the program, and she showed colored slides which had been made by Mr. Board in various places in the United States.

Included in the scenes were views of both the New York and the San Francisco fairs, the Grand Canyon, the Mardi Gras at New Orleans and Natchez. Some pictures also showed the Mansfield public parks, Mohican state park and the Board home.

Luncheon was served following the program with Mrs. Carville Gorman and Mrs. Leo Perl presiding at the table. The next meeting will be held April 12 at 11 a. m. with Mrs. George Mead and Mrs. E. J. Gilbert as the hostesses. Mrs. A. J. Reynolds will be in charge of the program.

Luncheon Served to Club Members, Guests

Mrs. William Robertson of Springfield, Mass., Mrs. Eva Bair of Gibsonburg and Mrs. Flossie Hartman were guests for a dessert-luncheon meeting of the Utilian club yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Carl Hartman on Marion avenue. Bouquets of spring flowers decorated the home for the occasion.

The group spent the afternoon sewing and crocheting. The members are planning to entertain their husbands with a party on April 12. Mrs. F. C. Disc, 237 Wood street, will be the hostess, assisted by Mrs. E. L. Balyeat. Mrs. Maude Hoover, Mrs. Carl Heim and Mrs. J. E. Taylor. The next regular meeting will be on April 19 with Mrs. Hoover, Wood street.

PLAN INITIATION.

Members of Beta Kappa Tau planned to hold the informal initiation of pledges on April 11 Thursday when they met in the club rooms. Pledges were given instructions for their test week which begins April 5. Miss Pauline Folmer was in charge.

CIRCLES MEET.

Two of the circles of the Park Avenue Baptist church had luncheon meetings yesterday. Mrs. Lyle Terry, 47 West Prospect street, was hostess to 12 members of Circle Two. Devotions were led by Miss Donna Edwards. Mrs. Perry Bush led the devotions when Mrs. F. W. Bellnap, 2 Park drive, entertained members of Circle Three with a covered dish luncheon. No dates were set for future meetings.

CONDUCT SESSION.

Thirty-five members of the Lady Garfield Council, No. 24, Daughters of America met at Eagle hall last evening to practice for the annual inspection to be held on May 10. Mrs. Alice Mae Hunter was in charge of the session. A district group meeting is scheduled for April 12 at the hall.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

By ADELE GARRISON

So deciding mentally that when Edith was in better condition, Dicky and I would take up the question of the magazine with her, and that in the meantime we would keep on with work as usual, I spoke in as soothing fashion as I could manage.

"Everything shall be just as you wish, Ede. But we can't do anything about it until this present mess is cleared up, and there is something in which I need your help right now."

I had struck the right note. She looked up at me with animated interest replacing resigned apathy in her eyes.

"What is it you want me to do?" she asked.

"Nothing very hard," I returned, smiling back at her. "But my father wishes to make some experiments with the speaking tube in my room, and as he'll probably have two or three men in here with him, Lillian and I thought you'd be less disturbed in her room. It's quiet, and she has everything all ready for you. So, if you feel able to walk that far, I'd like to take you over there."

"She was sitting up as I finished, and swung her feet from the bed to the ground.

"I'm able to go anywhere you wish," she said, but I had seen her wince when I mentioned Lillian's room, and knew that she dreaded contact with my truculent friend, who she could not help but know, viewed her with disapproval.

"There's one thing I want you to know," I said with careful casualness. "Nobody is to come into the room where you are except me, unless you ring for Katie, and give an order to the contrary. And when my father is through with this room, I'll move you back here."

She gave a relieved sigh.

"I won't deny that is grateful and relieving news," she said. "And I'm ready to go now."

I put my hand underneath her elbow and steadied her progress out of the room and down the hall to Lillian's room, finding it ready for occupancy, but with no trace of its mistress, save a little note addressed to me lying on the table by the side of two keys. I opened it and read its short message to me.

"Here are duplicate keys to the room," it said. "Suggest that you give one to Ede, and lock the door with the other, carrying it away with you. Then Ede will be able to get out if she wishes, but nobody else will be able to get in unless you approve. Think also it might be well to tell Ede there may be queer noises—and smells—around after a bit, but that she mustn't be frightened, nor yet pay any attention to them. Nobody is going to be in danger."

But when I had relayed the note to Edith with a lame explanation which carefully avoided any mention of the man hiding in the attic, and had given her the duplicate key, I locked Lillian's door from the outside with a distinct doubt of her assurance that nobody was going to be in danger.

Museums Subject Of Paper Given By Mrs. L. C. Nigh

Yesterday members of the Art Study club were the guests of Mrs. Marion Brinkerhoff, 43 Penn avenue, when Mrs. Frank Glasgow and Mrs. Ralph Race assisted. There were 28 members present for the program given by Mrs. Leonard Nigh. She gave the paper entitled "Art Museums in Washington, D. C."

The paper consisted of a discussion of the National, Freer, Corcoran, and Phillips Memorial museums, and the Kress, Frick and Mellon collections. A social hour followed with Mrs. C. R. Damron and Mrs. Harvey Lanchart presiding at the tea table which was decorated with spring flowers.

Members will meet again April 12 at the Susie Janis home with Mrs. Glasgow scheduled on the program. Hostesses for the afternoon session will be Mrs. David R. Talbot, Mrs. Boyd Wierman and Mrs. J. E. Fendrick.

Phi Delta Theta Has Election at Banquet

The annual Founders' Day banquet of Phi Delta Theta fraternity alumni was held last night at the Schwarz tavern on the Lexington avenue road. Paul Tappan showed pictures of his recent South Sea island trip, and Fred J. Milligan, Columbus attorney, was guest speaker.

Officers elected at this time were Nelson E. White, president; E. K. Bacon, vice-president, and Perry Cook, secretary-treasurer.

ENTERTAINS AUXILIARY.

Mrs. Charles Penney was a guest when members of the auxiliary to the Firemen's local met with Mrs. E. L. Penney, Sheridan avenue, Thursday. After the business session games were played and prizes were won by Mrs. Charles Seeburger and Mrs. Leo Saltzger. Mrs. Frank May, Sturges avenue, will entertain April 17.

CIRCLE SESSION.

There were 13 members of Circle Four of the First Methodist church present at the home of Mrs. J. Leo Hartmann, 36 Stewart avenue, Thursday. Mrs. Charles McKinley and Mrs. D. L. Divilbiss were associate hostesses. Mrs. Divilbiss conducted the business meeting, and Mr. George Hout led the devotions. The next meeting will be held April 18 with Mrs. Charles Boals, 45 Maple street.

HAVE DINNER.

The 15th annual dinner of the Ladies auxiliary to the Letter Carriers association was held last night at the North Lake park pavilion with 50 present. Dinner was served at a T-shaped table decorated with blue and white appointments. The program included a skit by Carol Damron and Dorothy Speck, readings by Sammie Kay Matthes, and vocal numbers by Willis Lewis. Games and contests followed. The next regular meeting of the auxiliary will be held April 23 with Miss Grace Evely.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, March 31.

SUNDAY'S forecast presages a day of memorable events, with the prospect of the attainment of unusual and outstanding ambitions and desires. These may reach into the fastnesses of spiritual, mystical, romantic and practical life, according to the aspirations and abilities. There may be surprise and unforeseen adventures and experiences.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of unpredictable and unprecedented experiences. There may be sudden change, adventure, romance and thrills, as well as intrigues and strategies. The new and strange in contacts and expression assure some sort of dynamic and far-reaching attainment.

A child born on this day may have such a wide scope of talent and versatility as to attain extraordinary heights of accomplishment, probably in new or radical forms, expression or experience.

For Monday, April 1.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a particularly lively and enterprising day, with affairs moving with drastic force toward the attainment of sound objectives. It is a time for working forcefully and bravely for major projects, despite certain opposition from elders or other forms of determined frustration.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and exciting year, with things moving at quite accelerated tempo, and possibly with some tempest and hostility. The latter may be from elders or a group action of sinister force. But constructive and practical programs win out.

A child born on this day may be bold, audacious, determined and aggressive, with practical creative ability as well as keen insight.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB NAMES NEW OFFICERS

Mrs. J. B. Conard Will Take Over Duties of President; Group Makes Several Contributions, Plans Luncheon Session.

NEW OFFICERS were elected yesterday when members of the Cosmopolitan club met at the Women's Club with Mrs. F. J. Schuster. Mrs. J. B. Conard will serve as president. She will be assisted by Mrs. D. P. Smith, vice president; Mrs. A. C. Butterfield, secretary, and Mrs. W. B. Ford, treasurer.

During the business session contributions were made to send a girl to the Y. W. C. camp, to the Community Fund drive and to the Women's Club. Mrs. F. A. Hoffman had the paper "Occupational Adjustment Movement for Youth." She discussed the various channels used by the government in aiding youth, and spoke of the accomplishments of the C. C. C. the N. Y. A. and the regular occupational program. Mrs. Conard reported the ticket sales for the Dental Clinic benefits.

Mrs. J. E. Lautsbaugh concluded the afternoon with a comprehensive report on current events. The next meeting of the club will be held April 12 at the club with Mrs. Paul Eliot, Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine and Mrs. Hoffman as luncheon hostesses. A business session and a round table discussion will follow with Mrs. C. A. McClure and Mrs. F. L. Hanson in charge.

Mrs. Clara Hicks was welcomed as a new member of the Past Councilors association, Daughters of America yesterday afternoon during a meeting at Eagle hall. The business session was conducted by Miss Mary Beilstein. Card games were the afternoon's diversion, after which Mrs. Hazel Stiehler and her committee served dinner at 6 o'clock. The next regular meeting will be held at the hall on April 26.

ROUTINE SESSION.

Plans for the annual banquet of the Busy Bee club were completed last night when Mrs. Tom Long entertained members at her home on South Main street road. Mrs. Chester Scribner was associate hostess. The affair will be held April 12 at Schwarz's tavern on the Lexington avenue road. One guest, Mrs. Ella Taylor, was present yesterday when bunco was played. The guest and Mrs. Bessie Sheets, Mrs. Gus Schill, and Mrs. George Bistline won the prizes.

PLAN BANQUET.

FETE RESIDENT.

Members of the Willing Workers' society of the Little Washington church honored Mrs. Marion Lutz yesterday with a housewarming party. She was presented with a coffee table by the group.

ORGANIZE GROUP.

An organization meeting of the young people of the Pilgrim church was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Weaver, Lind avenue, last night. The birthday of Harry Weaver, Jr., was celebrated at this time, and following the social evening refreshments were served to 30. The table was decorated with a large birthday cake. Mrs. Allen Stoner, who will entertain April 26, was in charge of entertainment.

CLUB MEETS.

Members of the Mary-Martha Bible club met with Mrs. Maurice W. Street, Wood street, yesterday, and Mrs. F. W. Backenstoes conducted the meeting. Mrs. L. F. Rondel was in charge of the devotions, and Mrs. C. G. Critchfield read the lesson. Mrs. E. M. Stretch, Pleasantville, N. J., was a guest. The next meeting will be April 11 with Mrs. J. Leo Hartmann.

ENTERTAIN TWO.

Mrs. Homer Swift and Mrs. Harold Mansfield were guests of the Priscillian club yesterday for a meeting at the Women's Club. Mrs. Sidney Palmer was the hostess, and luncheon was served at 1 o'clock. A bouquet of spring flowers centered the table. The place and date of the next meeting will be announced later.

Three Friendly House Ringsters Win Championships

Paychek's No Match for Joe In Title Setto

Brown Bomber Removes Doubt He's Slowing Up By Stopping Rival In 44 Seconds of Second Heat.

By ORLO ROBERTSON
NEW YORK—(AP)—Mr. Editor—you might as well keep in type that headline, "Joe Louis Wins." It looks as if there'll be plenty more opportunities to use it.

The Brown Bomber still is champion of the world with no indication he'll have the crown knocked from his brow by the present crop of heavyweights. He disposed of the Johnny Paychek threat, if it might be dignified by that name, 44 seconds after the start of the second round in Madison Square Garden last night.

That pile driving right that lifted the partly bald, 25-year-old Iowan off his feet and sent him to the canvas left Promoter Michael Strauss Jacobs and 11,620 fans asking themselves—"Who's next?"

BOWLING SCORES

Needhamer of the Tool and Patterns team copped individual scoring honors in the Ohio Brass league last night at the Meder alleys by walloping the maples for a 608 score.

He rolled a 193 in the first game, 224 in the second, and 191 in the third.

Humphries Hits Comeback After Slump

Indian Star Hurls 16 Innings Without Allowing a Run.

ATLANTA, Ga.—(AP)—Johnny Humphries, a young hurler whose star has risen and then fallen with the Cleveland Indians, hit the comeback trail hard today.

After a brilliant 1938 debut as a relief pitcher, Johnny skidded downhill last season and wound up with New Orleans in the Southern Association. Chief reason for his downfall was inability to throw a passable curve ball.

Today Johnny owns a curve ball to go along with his fast ball and a record of 16 innings of exhibition ball without allowing an earned run.

His latest performance was a two-hit job over five innings against Columbus, Ga., of the Sally league yesterday. The Indians won, 8 to 1.

Columbus can be minimized as first class opposition but nevertheless Johnny definitely has better control and a curve. The Indians meet Atlanta today.

Columbus Gets 1942 Tourney

American Bowling Congress Selects Ohio Capital.

DETROIT—(AP)—The American Bowling Congress' 1942 tournament goes to Columbus, O.

Inaugurating a new policy whereby tournaments will be awarded two years in advance, the Congress last night selected Columbus over Indianapolis. St. Paul received the 1941 tourney, as expected.

Neil C. King, of Indianapolis, was elected A. B. C. president, succeeding Frank J. Fitzpatrick, of Oakland, Calif.

The Congress also increased prizes for the current and future tournaments, approving $1,500 for the five-man event title and $600 in the doubles to make all championships, except the all-events, worth $300 for winners. First prize in the singles and all-events remained at $300 and $200, respectively.

Previously, the team championship has paid $1,000 and the doubles, $500.

The National Bowling Workers' Association elected Billy Sixty of the Milwaukee Journal as president. Vice-presidents include Dick McGeorge of the Toledo Blade and Paul Walker of the Columbus Dispatch. Tom Boiger of the Toledo Times was named corresponding secretary.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McEMORE
NEW YORK—(AP)—There is but one consolation for the 11,620 chumps who paid prices ranging from $3 to $16.50 to see the Joe Louis-Johnny Paychek fight in Madison Square Garden.

They will be able to tell their children and their grandchildren that they saw the worst bout in history of the world's heavy-weight boxing championship. No matter what fights are held in the future, the affair of last night will stand as the sorriest spectacle in which a champion and a challenger were involved.

Long after the biggest redwood has succumbed to time, and the scar that is the Grand Canyon has healed, Paychek's slaughter by Louis in one round and 44 seconds will remain unmatched as a display of poor matchmaking and fright, particularly the latter.

The Iowa boy, who was billed as a fighting man, and who didn't put in a denial, was a pathetic excuse as a challenger for the championship. He scarcely could manage the steps that led into the ring, so afraid was he, and as he sat on his chair awaiting instructions his knees literally knocked together. His face was chalky, and he twitched with a nervousness that was unwholesome.

When the bell rang for the first round and he struggled out toward Louis, Paychek was something to make you want to turn your head. He held his hands in front of him as a frightened woman would, and he shook all over. Fear, terrible fear, was all over his face, and in his eyes, and in his every movement.

Never once did he throw a punch.

The finishing punch was one of the hardest Louis ever threw. It was a full right back, started from as far back as he could sweep his arm, and it caught Paychek flush on the jaw. The Iowan's mouth flew open and he was lifted into the air. He fell backward, with a moan, and the sound of his head striking the floor was like an echo to the crash of the champion's fist.

In his dressing room Paychek sat dumbly on the rubbing table, his head cupped in his hands. He remembered nothing, save the sight of Louis' first knockdown punch, a left hook, coming toward him. He didn't even know what round he was finished in, and kept mumbling over and over again "I'm sorry, I'm sorry." Forty-five minutes after the fight he was still sitting on the table, tight on, ring shoes laced.

INDIANA AND KANSAS COLLIDE AT 8 TONIGHT

KANSAS CITY—(AP)—Basketball teams from the University of Indiana and Kansas University—as much alike as a pair of dollar bills—collide tonight for the national collegiate title.

Judged the best in the nation by the process of elimination, they will meet at 8 p. m. (Central standard time). Around 10,000 spectators are expected.

CONSOLATION BOUT
Bob Emerson, 126, Mansfield Y. M. C. A. defeated Howard William, 126, Cincinnati.

SEMI-FINALS
John Cottler, 142, Fremont, defeated Clarence Hickman, 142, Richmond; Bob Miller, 135, Loudonville, defeated Ed Laubert, 136, Fremont.

FINALS
Jimmy McElroy, 112, Columbus, defeated Russ Smith, 111, Marion; Ed Tally, 144, Friendly House, defeated Fred Harris, 118, Crestline; Al Sauer, 163, Friendly House, defeated Phil Heuss, 174, Fremont; Morris Shingler, 17, Ada, stopped Pat Collins, 185, Columbus, in one minute and 46 seconds of third; John Cottler, 142, Fremont, defeated Joe Sauer, 146, Friendly House; Bill Moore, 160, Newark, defeated Sherman Washington, 157, Columbus; Sam Walker, 124, Friendly House, defeated Charlie Gynn, 126, Columbus, and Ray Howman, 135, Ashland, won on a technical knockout over Bob Miller, 131, Loudonville.

111 dogs respectively run in the two Crawford County chases, and this year promises to have more dogs to run, the officers said today. Any profits derived from these chases are used solely for re-stocking of wild game.

As Louis Cancels Johnny Paychek

Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis successfully defends his crown again by knocking out Johnny Paychek, Des Moines contender, with a right to the jaw in the second round. A crowd of 11,625 witnessed the bout, held in Madison Square Garden, New York.

Sauer Picked As Outstanding Boxer of Meet

Tally, Walker, Sauer Score Impressive Triumphs to Cop Titles In Annual A. A. U. Tourney.

By CHARLES MARTIN
AL SAUER today has reached the first high point in his brief, but a spectacular boxing career.

A struggling novice three months ago, Sauer, an 18-year-old high school student, climaxed his ring activities in the Mansfield high gymnasium last night by winning the lightweight crown and receiving the trophy for the outstanding boxer in the third annual Junior Association of Commerce A. A. U. tournament.

He was one of three Mansfield youngsters copping titles in the classic which drew approximately 550 spectators.

Ed Tally, fighting under the Friendly House banner, as a bantamweight, and Sam Walker, also of the settlement, fighting in the featherweight class are the other Mansfield champions.

Bill Moore, 160, Newark, successfully defended his middleweight title by decisioning Sherman Washington, 157, of Columbus.

Other winners were Jimmy McElroy, Columbus, flyweight; Morris Shingler, Ada, heavyweight; Ray Howman, Ashland, lightweight, and John Cottler, Fremont, welterweight.

Staging a brilliant comeback after going down in the second for a count of eight, Sauer brought cheers from the crowd as he thumped Phil Heuss, 177, Fremont, all over the ring in the final heat.

Although handicapped by an 11-pound weight disadvantage, Sauer led the fight from the opening gong. He took a slight edge in the first but Heuss got over a rousing right early in the second that sent Sauer to the canvas.

Heuss, a capable puncher, was on the defense during most of the last heat. Several times Sauer had him on the verge of a knockdown.

SEEKING SPONSOR
Any sponsor wishing to back the former DeLuxe Cab softball team is requested to contact John Villella. A meeting of team members will be held early in April, Villella stated.

Sauer is the second Mansfield lad to receive the outstanding boxer award. Beauford Glover, crack lightweight, who was unable to participate in the event, won the title last spring.

Boxing smoothly, Tally held the edge over Frank Harris, 114, Crestline, all the way. Harris was willing to mix, but took two punches for every one he was able to dish out. Harris stayed away from Tally in the last stanza.

Walker's aggressiveness was an important factor in enabling him to take the featherweight crown from Charlie Gynn, 126, Columbus. Gynn started fast, but Walker's neat right began giving him trouble midway in the first, and he couldn't keep away from it.

Howman and Shingler, the latter from Ohio Northern university, were the only miststers to win on knockouts. Howman won on a technical knockout over Bob Miller, 135, Loudonville, in two minutes and seven seconds of the third. It was Miller's fifth fight in the tourney.

Shingler, one of the best heavies to perform here in several years, stopped Pat Collins, 185, Columbus, in one minute and 46 seconds of the third. Collins' seconds had to carry him to his corner.

Joe Sauer, making his ring debut in the meet, lost a decision to John Cottler. The Fremont lad was too experienced for the Mansfielder. Joe tried to score a knock-out, but Cottler had him missing plenty.

Bob Emerson, 126, Mansfield Y. M. C. A., decided Howard Williams, 126, Friendly House, in a consolation match.

Atty. John Catlett presented the championship awards to the winners. Net proceeds from the meet will be divided between the Mansfield Relays and the J. A. C. charity fund. John Eichinger, the third man in the ring, handled the fights without any trouble.

CINCINNATI LEAVES.
TAMPA, Fla.—The Cincinnati Reds prepared to pull stakes today after their game with the Boston Red Sox, but the Tampa Chamber of Commerce already has obtained the club's promise to return here next spring.

Ashlander Loses to Finn Star

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Taisto Maki, holder of five world distance records, took a new Cleveland two-mile indoor mark in his seemingly effortless stride, and added more dollars to the Finnish relief fund.

The fleet-footed Finn, competing against four Ohio college runners in an exhibition race, covered the distance in 9 minutes, 17.1 seconds last night, then stolidly joined his coach, renowned Paavo Nurmi, amid the plaudits of more than 5,000 spectators.

Racing on a "slow" track, Maki lapped the entire field at least once and sheared 40.3 seconds from the previous Cleveland indoor record set by Joe Sivak of Butler university.

A son of Finnish-born parents, Aaro Alapoti, Miami university sophomore, set the pace for the flying Finn in the first of the 24 laps, but before the end of the race Maki had lapped Alapoti and William Sawyer of Ashland college three times, and Ronald Force of Heidelberg once. In the final half-mile he lapped Gilbert Dadds of Ashland college, who two years ago ran second to Don Lash in the Sugar Bowl carnival two-mile at New Orleans. Dadds finished second.

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

Word comes from Columbus that the Charles Mill Dam project will be open to fishermen below Route 30 (South of Park Avenue East Road) on July 1st. The section North of Park Avenue East Road will be closed. And at Pleasant Hill, fishing is now governed by the state laws applying to other lakes and streams.

The bark of the red gum eucalyptus tree is as soft as a cushion. Tis said you can strike it with your fist, with all your might, without hurting your hand.

Jodhpurs are increasing in popularity with outdoor women, not only for riding, but for hiking, camping and many other outdoor activities. Yuncker's offers these smart yet practical garments, in a pleasing selection of colors at $3.50 and $5.00.

For nearly a century it has been thought that the Hare Indian dog was extinct. But evidence that this breed still lives and hunts bear was discovered recently in the wilder sections of British Columbia. In an Indian settlement at Bear Lake, two small, short haired, black and white dogs were found, unlike all the other dogs. They resembled closely the form and coloring of the Hare Indian dog in the natural museum of Canada, at Ottawa, and are believed to be the same animal.

If you have a lot of trouble with backlashes in your casting, try the Shakespeare "Wonderel." It eliminates those troublesome "birdsnecks," yet requires no spool thumbing. It was made to sell at $6.00, but you can buy one at Yuncker's for $4.95.

In the deep sea waters off New York City there is a grotesque fish known as the Guiser Eel. This eel is almost all mouth, with an extremely tiny skull and a long slender tapering tail. He would make a very good traffic signal as his tail ends in a series of green lights.

Until bird-banding was adopted, no one knew that the red head duck migrates east and west—not north and south—as most migratory birds do. The Long-Eared Owl is not supposed to be much of a traveler, yet one banded in California was shot in Ontario, after he had traveled more than 3,000 miles.

The eye of the antelope is larger than that of any other quadruped of its size... and the animal has been known to weep in affliction, according to American Wildlife Institute.
